

Chinese Festivals

In China, we have many festivals every year. The most important for Chinese people is the Spring Festival, and you also call it Chinese New Year. It is the oldest traditional (传统的) festival.

On this day, people will put up the New Year pictures, fire the firecrackers, make a New Year call and children will put on their new clothes. Everyone is very happy.

Another important Chinese festival is the Mid-Autumn Day. It's on August 15th on the lunar calendar (阴历). On the night of this day, the moon will become round. It means reunion (团圆). At that night, the family members will sit round the table together outside, talking about their stories, eating the moon cakes, watching the round moon and enjoying the happiest time.

And there are many other interesting festivals in China. So if you are in China, enjoy each of them.

Thoughts about Fire

The Spring Festival is the most important festival in China.

This Spring Festival, Dad bought lots of fireworks.

On the eve, he lighted them, and ten they blossomed (盛开) like flowers in the sky with sweet sounds and bright light. How beautiful! It brought me the beautiful feelings.

But I was worried about the fireworks.

First, setting off firecrackers made a big noise and caused terrible air pollution. It will also hurt children.

Next morning many dustmen's (清洁工) valuable (珍贵的) time was wasted for cleaning the pieces of the fireworks.

So I think some day we'll have to stop making and setting off fireworks or firecrackers, though it's a Chinese custom for hundreds of years.
